CAUTIONED

By Squire Campbell

To Make No Charge Against the Court.

Case Has Assumed Large Proportions.

Said Miss Allyn Did Not Sign Affidavit.

This Aroused the Court—Motion For New Trial.

From a rather simple case of trespass, the action brought in Justice Campbell's court by Miss H. S. Allyn, of Coventry township, against Robert Gillen and Burton McBurney of this city, has grown into a rather complicated suit.

Saturday, September 16, the defendants were arrested by Deputy Game Warden Samuel Fogt for hunting and shooting on Miss Allyn's farm. He told them that if they would appear before a justice Saturday without further trouble their fine would be small, and he would add no costs.

Instead, the defendants got counsel, and didn't appear. Monday, September 18, Miss Allyn made an affidavit in Justice Campbell's court, and Officer Fogt served it on the defendants. They appeared in court and as the affidavit was made against both defendants, they were fined $5 and the costs were $3, making $8, or $4 to each.

They, however, changed their plea from "guilty" to "not guilty," and demanded a jury trial, which was set for Tuesday morning, September 20th.

Last Monday the defendants visited Miss Allyn and it is said confessed to trespassing, said they were sorry and asked her to dismiss the action against them. They agreed to settle, and Miss Allyn was satisfied with this. The defendants didn't settle the matter, however, but the plaintiff believing the matter would be dropped, did not appear at the hearing Tuesday morning.

W. A. Spencer, a law student, was one of the counsel for the defendants. He made the statement Tuesday morning that the prosecuting witness had not sworn to the affidavit, also saying that it was not hers, and wanted the case dismissed.

This was the first accusation of the kind ever made against Justice Campbell and he resented it in a very positive manner, saying to Mr. Spencer: "I caution you to make no charges against this court, relative to its having intimidated the complaining witness. You have intimidated that Miss Allyn had never sworn to the affidavit, nor signed it. If you come into court this afternoon and repeat the assertion, I shall fine you for contempt of court. I call you to order."

Miss Allyn was sent for, and was present at the hearing in the afternoon. In her testimony she said she had sworn to the affidavit and signed it.

The jury returned a verdict of "guilty." A motion was promptly filed for a new trial. Law points will be argued by the attorneys Saturday.

SMALL

Operators Will Compete With the Trust.

Drilling Will be Stopped In Ohio and Indiana Fields.

A dispatch from Toledo says: A "combine" of the oil producers to stop drilling in Ohio and Indiana fields is assured. The operators of the Lima district have been seen and have practically agreed to enter such a combination, and drilling will be suspended for six months. The Indiana operators, it is understood today at the Toledo oil exchange, are agreeable to the proposition. It is proposed to run the price of oil to $2 by the first of April.

Ivy L. Miller, who is heavily interested in the Lima oil fields, was asked by a DEMOCRAT reporter about the above dispatch today. He said that while he had not been approached on the matter he probably would be soon. It is the feeling among oil men that they are not receiving enough for their product and a concentrated movement is about to advance the price, but whether it will reach the $2 mark is a question. The present price is $1.01.

From the complexion of affairs it looks as though the "small fry" were going to attempt to compete strongly with the Standard Oil Co.

"DICK WAS THERE"

Col. H. C. Sanford Explains Why

The Roosevelt Meeting Was Such a Big Success.

"I learn that Wash Johnston has been circulating the report that his big mill dam near Turkeyfoot Lake was blown up by powder," said Col. H. C. Sanford to a DEMOCRAT reporter the other day. "This, however, is not correct. My original statement that the dam was built of sand and founded on sand, and that when the floods came and beat against it, it was too weak to withstand the shock, is the only correct version of the matter."

"I was much pleased to see Wash in the crowd Saturday, but when he did not speak to me I suffered a great disappointment."

"I was also glad to see Park Alexander in the crowds."

"I don't care to say much about the meeting Roosevelt Day. It was a big meeting, of course. Dick was here, and wherever he is there is usually a big meeting."

"Mark Hanna was here as ballast to steady the 'thing.'"

With the delegation from Ashtabula, in Akron Roosevelt Day, was "Captain" Houghton, a veteran of the war of the Rebellion. Shortly after reaching the city, Mr. Houghton at once went to M. O'Neill's store and inquired for the general manager, Mr. P. F. O'Neill. A pleasant reunion of old associations and merry times spent together was the result of the meeting. Mr. O'Neill and Mr. Houghton are old comrades, and had not seen each other for 35 years. They camped together at Nashville, Tenn., both serving under General Thomas. The old comrades enjoyed a very pleasant time together Saturday.

Just 39 tickets were sold to the Akron meeting Saturday, and seven of these were to ladies, says a Wooster special. The preliminary announcements stated that the Republican club and a band of this city were to take part in the parade. There is no Republican club and there were no negotiations for the band. The only member of the Republican Executive committee present was W. B. Bryson of Wooster. Hon. I. L. Snyder, Hon. A. S. McClure, Jacob Frick and all the leading lights of the party were conspicuous by their absence as were also the county candidates.

Though Senator Foraker's emancipation speech at Hamilton was practically the opening gun in the Ohio Republican campaign, the state managers are not disposed to accuse him of trying to take the wind out of the sails of the Akron meeting, says a special. On the other hand there are many expressions of relief on the part of prominent politicians that the Senator has forcibly declared himself on the side of the National Administration.

There are politicians who say Senator Foraker dare not take a stand against the policy of the National Administration for fear of antagonizing elements which he needs in his re-election to the Senate in 1901. Then, too, there is no longer any concealment of Chairman Charles Dick's senatorial aspirations. His friends are talking of him already as a successor to Foraker, and the selection of Akron, Colonel Dick's home, for the opening of the Republican state campaign was calculated to win favor for Dick in the Western Reserve. When all these elements in Ohio politics are understood the apparent impulsiveness of Senator Foraker to be the first to champion the politics of the National Administration in the Ohio campaign are not so mysterious, and those Republicans who have wondered whether the Senator would be on or off the band wagon during the campaign, especially the state managers are inclined to congratulate the Senator and overlook any seeming breach of courtesy to the Akron speakers in the general satisfaction of knowing where he stands.
